DONATING SECURITIES
A Way to Help Others During Tough Times

Challenge: The ebb and flow of the economy directly affects our portfolios, while you continue to hear about the rising financial needs of charitable organizations. One challenge you may be facing today is matching your charitable goals with strategies that make sense in a changing economy.

Solution: An effective response to the challenge of helping others during times of economic uncertainty is to donate stocks, bonds, or other marketable securities that are worth more than what you originally paid for them.

WHY DOES GIVING STOCK MAKE SENSE?
When making a charitable gift of appreciated securities that you have owned for more than one year, you will receive a double tax benefit:
1. You are entitled to a federal income tax deduction based on the current fair market value of the securities, regardless of their original cost.
2. You will also be exempt from paying capital gains taxes on any increase in the value of the securities since you acquired them—taxes you would pay if you had otherwise sold them.

A tax or legal advisor can provide you with additional information about this way to support your favorite programs and causes. We would be happy to assist you as well. Just give us a call.

Need More Income Now?
You might choose to give stocks that aren’t paying dividends to a charitable remainder trust or use them to establish a charitable gift annuity.* These options can generate reliable payments for you, family members, or friends for life while providing meaningful support to ATSU.

A tax or legal advisor can provide you with additional information about this way to support your favorite programs and causes. We would be happy to assist you as well. Just give us a call.

SUPPORT ATSU
Scan the QR code below with your smartphone or tablet to learn how!

Healthy Investments
For Alumni and Friends of A.T. Still University

“THINK OSTEOPATHICALLY”
Alumnus Brings New Energy and Focus to AOA

In July 2011, Martin Levine, D.O. ’80, MPH ’03, FACOFP, became the 115th president of the American Osteopathic Association (AOA) and in the months since has energetically challenged fellow physicians and aspiring student doctors with his theme to “Think Osteopathically; Practice It, Prove it, Publish it, and Promote It.” His passion for advancing the mission of his profession flows from four generations of family deeply rooted in the traditions of osteopathic medicine. Grandfather, father, uncles, brother, cousins, nieces, and nephews make up a long succession of D.O.s spanning many decades, various osteopathic colleges, and a wide variety of medical practices.

A unique legacy of AOA leadership continued with Dr. Levine following in the footsteps of his father, Howard M. Levine, D.O. ’54, who served as Association president in 1997–98. They were the first father-son AOA presidents. The AOA was founded in 1897 by a group of students at the American School of Osteopathy in Kirksville, Mo., with the goal of unifying the efforts of individual physicians and colleges to advance the osteopathic medical profession. Dr. Levine has been the 66th Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine (KCOM) graduate to lead the AOA.

A distinguished fellow of the American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians, Dr. Levine has a family practice in Bayonne, N.J., and Jersey City, N.J., and serves as associate dean for educational development at Touro College of Osteopathic Medicine in New York City. Dr. Levine also serves as discipline chief of family medicine and clinical associate professor at Seton Hall University School of Health and Medical Sciences. He is a past president of the New Jersey Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons and been named their Physician of the Year.

In service to ATSU-KCOM, Dr. Levine recently completed three terms on the University’s board of trustees, and, for a lifetime of generous financial support, has been recognized with ATSU’s Honored Patron Award. He is a graduate of ATSU’s School of Health Management with a master’s degree in public health. Dr. Levine delivered ATSU-KCOM’s commencement address this spring and was conferred with the honorary Doctor of Science in Osteopathy (DOSc) degree. He and his wife, Andrea, have two sons, Jacob and Aaron; and a daughter and son-in-law, Alena and Ed Bloom.
A FAMILY LEGACY
Two Families, Four Generations, Nearly 20 D.O.s

Dr. David S. Steinbaum, ATSU-KCOM ’30, Bayonne, N.J., became the patriarch of a family of dedicated osteopathic physicians that started with the Steinbaums and grew to include the Levine family. Howard M. Levine, D.O., Dr. Steinbaum’s son-in-law, graduated from ATSU-KCOM in 1954 and then practiced with Dr. Steinbaum for 35 years.

Inspired by Dr. Steinbaum, three successive generations of family members have emulated his legacy of patient care and volunteerism. The Steinbaum-Levine family has faithfully served in volunteer leadership positions at ATSU-KCOM, as well as with local, state, and national osteopathic organizations. As a testament to their support of education, the family created the Steinbaum-Levine Scholarship Endowment Fund at ATSU-KCOM that provided scholarship awards to 100 students amounting to $311,750 from 1969 to 2003. The endowment fund was changed from a scholarship endowment to the Steinbaum-Levine Endowment Fund for the Advancement of Osteopathic Medicine at ATSU-KCOM.

Numerous family members have followed Dr. David Steinbaum and Dr. Howard Levine in the osteopathic profession. In recognition of their family’s history of leadership, service, and support, ATSU-KCOM proudly dedicated the Steinbaum-Levine Legacy Hall in the Connell Information Technologies Center.

Create Your Legacy
To learn how you can leave a legacy at ATSU-KCOM, contact us at 866.626.2876, ext. 2180, or development@atsu.edu today, at no obligation.

ATSU-KCOM dedicated the Steinbaum-Levine Legacy Hall in the Connell Information Technologies Center, honoring the Steinbaum and Levine families.

MAJOR GIFT ADVANCES DENTAL EDUCATION MISSION

ATSU President Emeritus Jack Magruder has announced the naming of the Jack and Jamie Learning Center at its Center for Advanced Oral Health Education on the Mesa, Ariz., campus. Jack Dillenberg, DDS, MPH, inaugural dean of ATSU’s Arizona School of Dentistry and Oral Health (ASDOH), is donating $50,000 to the creation of the multiuse facility that will serve as a classroom, a continuing education center, and a community hub. “I am very grateful for Dr. Dillenberg’s generosity,” Dr. Magruder said. “This philanthropic gift shows the passion within each of us to educate students who are caring and compassionate.”

The 3,400-square-foot Jack and Jamie Learning Center honors Dr. Dillenberg and educator Jamie Moret. It is the latest addition to the 22,000-square-foot Center for Advanced Oral Health Education. “I am humbled by the opportunity to be part of this great University and filled with pride and joy at ASDOH’s success. This gift is for our students who are our best ambassadors and a tribute to their achievements,” Dr. Dillenberg said, marking his 10 years of service to ASDOH.

The Center’s first phase is currently in operation with a 22-chair orthodontic clinic and will soon be home to an advanced care clinic that will provide care for individuals with complicated oral health needs.

Learn more about the Center for Advanced Oral Health Education at www.atsu.edu/asdoh/caohe.

BONUS OFFERING!
Investigate new ways stock holdings can continue to work for you as charitable gifts. Put to a new use, they offer four benefits you may not have thought of before. With a soft stock market, your stocks can still be revitalized by helping others while you help yourself. To learn more, send for our FREE guide 4 Ways Donating Stock Can Benefit You by returning the enclosed survey.
A FAMILY LEGACY
Two Families, Four Generations, Nearly 20 D.O.s

Dr. David S. Steinbaum, ATSU-KCOM ’30, Bayonne, N.J., became the patriarch of a family of dedicated osteopathic physicians that started with the Steinbaums and grew to include the Levine family. Howard M. Levine, D.O., Dr. Steinbaum’s son-in-law, graduated from ATSU-KCOM in 1954 and then practiced with Dr. Steinbaum for 35 years.

Inspired by Dr. Steinbaum, three successive generations of family members have emulated his legacy of patient care and volunteerism. The Steinbaum-Levine family has faithfully served in volunteer leadership positions at ATSU-KCOM, as well as with local, state, and national osteopathic organizations. As a testament to their support of education, the family created the Steinbaum-Levine Scholarship Endowment Fund at ATSU-KCOM that provided scholarship awards to 100 students amounting to $311,750 from 1969 to 2003. The endowment fund was changed from a scholarship endowment to the Steinbaum-Levine Endowment Fund for the Advancement of Osteopathic Medicine at ATSU-KCOM.

Numerous family members have followed Dr. David Steinbaum and Dr. Howard Levine in the osteopathic profession. In recognition of their family’s history of leadership, service, and support, ATSU-KCOM proudly dedicated the Steinbaum-Levine Legacy Hall in the Cornell Information Technologies Center.

MAJOR GIFT ADVANCES DENTAL EDUCATION MISSION

ATSU President Emeritus Jack Magruder has announced the naming of the Jack and Jamie Learning Center at its Center for Advanced Oral Health Education on the Mesa, Ariz., campus. Jack Dillenberg, DDS, MPH, inaugural dean of ATSU’s Arizona School of Dentistry and Oral Health (ASDOH), is donating $50,000 to the creation of the multiuse facility that will serve as a classroom, a continuing education center, and a community hub. “I am very grateful for Dr. Dillenberg’s generosity,” Dr. Magruder said. “This philanthropic gift shows the passion within each of us to educate students who are caring and compassionate.”

The 3,400-square-foot Jack and Jamie Learning Center honors Dr. Dillenberg and educator Jamie Moret. It is the latest addition to the 22,000-square-foot Center for Advanced Oral Health Education. “I am humbled by the opportunity to be part of this great University and filled with pride and joy at ASDOH’s success. This gift is for our students who are our best ambassadors and a tribute to their achievements,” Dr. Dillenberg said, marking his 10 years of service to ASDOH.

The Center’s first phase is currently in operation with a 22-chair orthodontic clinic and will soon be home to an advanced care clinic that will provide care for individuals with complicated oral health needs.

Create Your Legacy
To learn how you can leave a legacy at ATSU-KCOM, contact us at 866.626.2878, ext. 2180, or development@atsu.edu today, at no obligation.

ATSU-KCOM dedicated the Steinbaum-Levine Legacy Hall in the Cornell Information Technologies Center, honoring the Steinbaum and Levine families.

Learn more about the Center for Advanced Oral Health Education at www.atsu.edu/asdoh/caohe.

BONUS OFFERING!

Investigate new ways stock holdings can continue to work for you as charitable gifts. Put to a new use, they offer four benefits you may not have thought of before. With a soft stock market, your stocks can still be revitalized by helping others while you help yourself. To learn more, send for our FREE guide 4 Ways Donating Stock Can Benefit You by returning the enclosed survey.

Click to receive your FREE copy!
DONATING SECURITIES
A Way to Help Others During Tough Times

Challenge: The ebb and flow of the economy directly affects our portfolios, while you continue to hear about the rising financial needs of charitable organizations. One challenge you may be facing today is matching your charitable goals with strategies that make sense in a changing economy.

Solution: An effective response to the challenge of helping others during times of economic uncertainty is to donate stocks, bonds, or other marketable securities that are worth more than what you originally paid for them.

WHY DOES GIVING STOCK MAKE SENSE?
When making a charitable gift of appreciated securities that you have owned for more than one year, you will receive a double tax benefit:
[1] You are entitled to a federal income tax deduction based on the current fair market value of the securities, regardless of their original cost.
[2] You will also be exempt from paying capital gains taxes on any increase in the value of the securities since you acquired them—taxes you would pay if you had otherwise sold them.

Need More Income Now?
You might choose to give stocks that aren’t paying dividends to a charitable remainder trust or use them to establish a charitable gift annuity. These options can generate reliable payments for you, family members, or friends for life while providing meaningful support to ATSU.

A tax or legal advisor can provide you with additional information about this way to support your favorite programs and causes. We would be happy to assist you as well. Just give us a call.

For Alumni and Friends of A.T. Still University
Summer 2012

Healthy Investments

“A THINK OSTEOPATHICALLY”
Alumnus Brings New Energy and Focus to AOA

In July 2011, Martin Levine, D.O. ’80, MPH ’03, FACOFP, became the 115th president of the American Osteopathic Association (AOA) and in the months since has energetically challenged fellow physicians and aspiring student doctors with his theme to "Think Osteopathically: Practice It, Prove It, Publish It, and Promote It." His passion for advancing the mission of his profession flows from four generations of family deeply rooted in the traditions of osteopathic medicine. Grandfather, father, uncles, brother, cousins, nieces, and nephews make up a long succession of D.O.s spanning many decades, various osteopathic colleges, and a wide variety of medical practices.

A unique legacy of AOA leadership continued with Dr. Levine following in the footsteps of his father, Howard M. Levine, D.O. ’54, who served as Association president in 1997–98. They were the first father-son AOA presidents. The AOA was founded in 1897 by a group of students at the American School of Osteopathy in Kirksville, Mo., with the goal of uniting the efforts of individual physicians and colleges to advance the osteopathic medical profession. Dr. Levine has been the 66th Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine (KCOM) graduate to lead the AOA.

A distinguished fellow of the American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians, Dr. Levine has a family practice in Bayonne, N.J., and Jersey City, N.J., and serves as associate dean for educational development at Touro College of Osteopathic Medicine in New York City. Dr. Levine also serves as discipline chief of family medicine and clinical associate professor at Seton Hall University School of Health and Medical Sciences. He is a past president of the New Jersey Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons and been named their Physician of the Year.

In service to ATSU-KCOM, Dr. Levine recently completed three terms on the University’s board of trustees, and, for a lifetime of generous financial support, has been recognized with ATSU’s Honored Patron Award. He is a graduate of ATSU’s School of Health Management with a master’s degree in public health. Dr. Levine delivered ATSU-KCOM’s commencement address this spring and was conferred with the honorary Doctor of Science in Osteopathy (DDS) degree. He and his wife, Andrea, have two sons, Jacob and Aaron; and a daughter and son-in-law, Alena and Ed Bloom.